Dr. Haripada Maity, Ex –Principal of Mugberia Gangadhar Mahavidyalaya has said that, Pandit Prabar Jyotirmoy Nanda's journey to establish Mugberia College was a testament to his unwavering dedication to education and his commitment to uplifting the lives of people in the region. The struggle to establish the college was not an easy one, but his vision and perseverance ultimately led to the realization of his dream. The idea of Mugberia College took shape in the early 60s when access to quality education was limited in this rural part of west Bengal. Recognizing the importance of education in empowering individuals and communities, Pandit Prabar Jyotirmoy Nanda set out to establish a college that would provide opportunities for higher education to the local youth. The initial challenges he faced were numerous. Funding was a significant obstacle, as resources were scarce in the region. Undeterred, he tirelessly campaigned and sought support from the community, local leaders, and philanthropists who shared his vision. His persuasive skills, coupled with his reputation as a respected scholar, helped garner the necessary financial backing.

Another hurdle was the lack of communication. Securing a suitable location for the college was no small feat, and the construction of classrooms, libraries, and other essential amenities required considerable effort and resources. With the help of many people, Pandit Prabar Jyotirmoy Nanda worked tirelessly to build the college from the ground up. The bureaucratic red tape and administrative hurdles added to the challenges, but he navigated through them with determination and patience. His passion for education and his genuine concern for the welfare of the students garnered support from various government authorities, eventually leading to the necessary approvals and recognition. Finally, after years of relentless struggle, Mugberia College became a reality. It opened its doors to students, offering a wide range of academic programs and creating a nurturing environment for learning and growth. The college became a beacon of hope for the local community, providing access to higher education for generations to come.

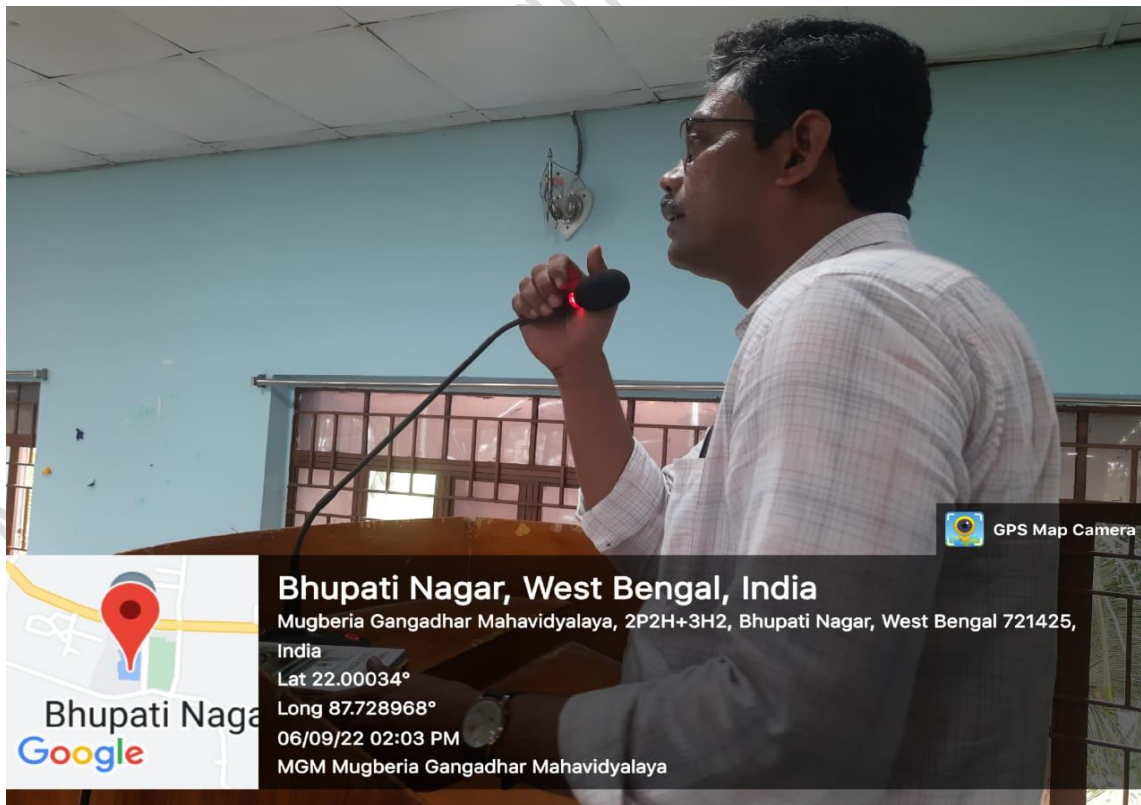

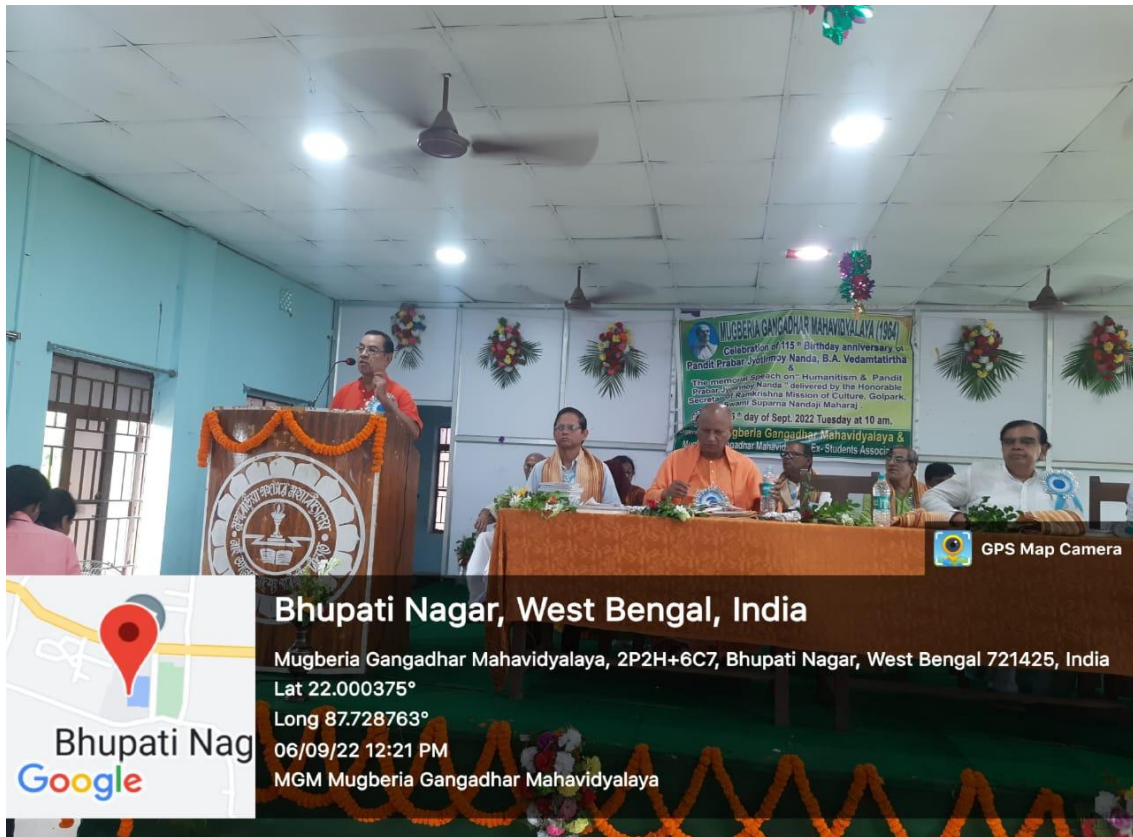

Pandit Prabar Jyotirmoy Nanda's struggle to establish Mugberia College serves as an inspiring example of how one individual's vision and perseverance can transform lives and uplift an entire community. His legacy lives on through the educational institution he founded, which continues to shape the futures of countless students and contribute to the progress of society.

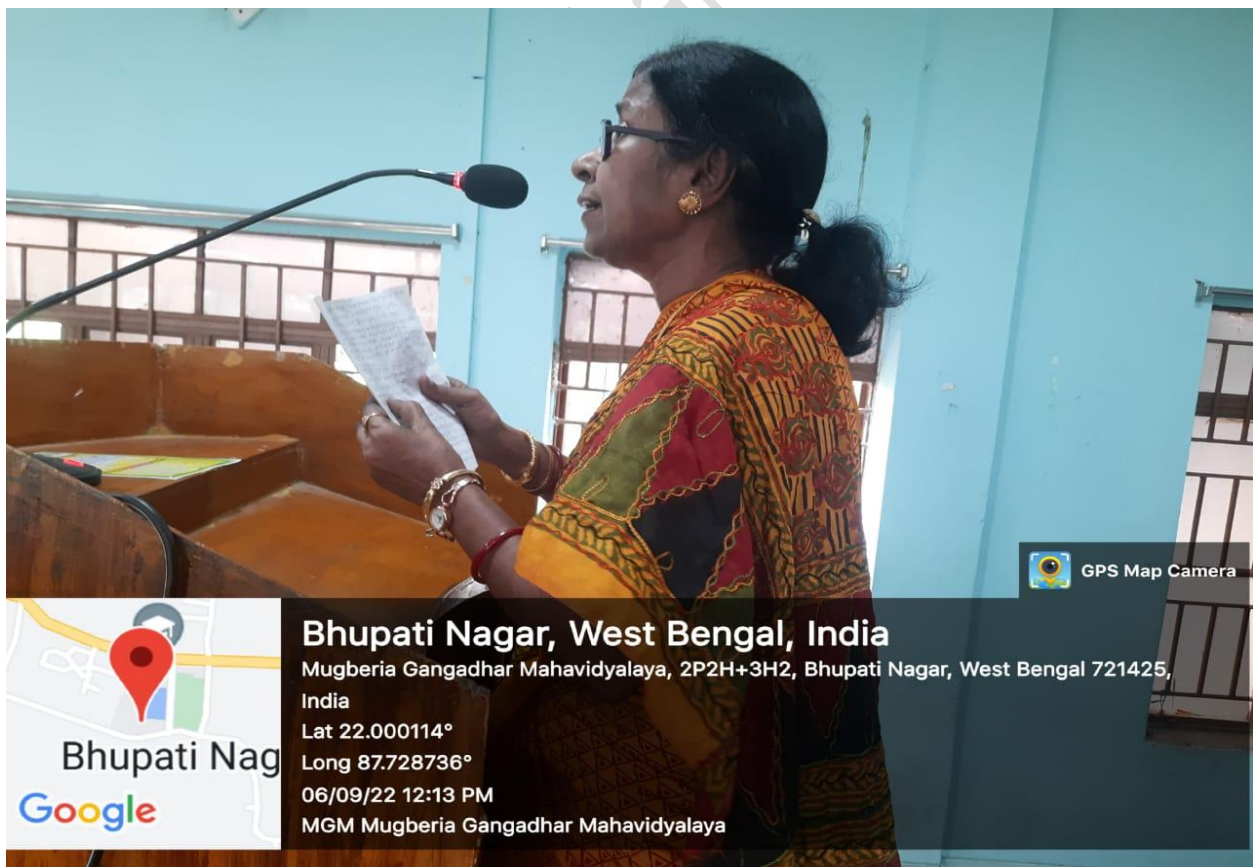

A book named "Pandit Prabor Jyotirmoy Nanda Mahodoyer 115 tomo Janmotsave Shraddhanjali" on the life and achievement of Pandit Prabor Jyotirmoy Nanda was inaugurated on the day by Swami Suparna Nanda Maharaj.
