Recent Developments - Azure Hospitality Private Limited v. Phonographic Performance Limited

Azure filed an appeal before the Division Bench, which overruled the order of the Single Judge and held that:

- Section 33(1) is worded in prescriptive terms. It unequivocally proscribes any person, or association of persons, from 'carrying on the business of issuing or granting licences in respect of any work in which copyright subsists...' except in accordance with registration granted under Section 33(3).
- As per Section 33 of the Act, only a registered copyright society is permitted to carry out the business of issuing licenses for the use of such works. PPL cannot issue licenses for public performance of sound recordings, as it is not a registered copyright society under the Copyright Act.
- While PPL relied on its rights as an assignee to issue licenses, the Court rejected this claim and opined that the business of issuing licences en masse falls squarely within the regulatory regime of copyright societies. It agreed with Azure's argument that allowing PPL to operate without registration would render the statutory framework meaningless.

Azure was directed to pay to PPL for the songs played by it, a sum equivalent to what is charged by Recorded Music Performance Limited (RMPL), as if PPL were a member of RMPL. This direction has been stayed by the Supreme Court on April 21, 2025, in an SLP filed by PPL.

Challenges in the digital world- Generative AI and copyright

Section 2(d) (vi)

- Author in relation to any literary, dramatic, musical, or artistic work which is computer-generated, is the person who causes the work to be created
- Currently only humans own copyright in India

Risks for individuals and organizations using generative AI tools (such as ChatGPT)

- Copyright infringement suits
- Inability to stand out in a crowd with your creations
- Stunted creativity and thinking 😊

ANI v. OpenAI – 2024, Delhi High Court

Asian News International (ANI)'s claims:

OpenAI used its copyrighted news content without authorisation to train its AI chatbot, ChatGPT.

It had no right to use its content for profit, even if the material was freely accessible online.

OpenAI must comply with copyright laws and compensate content creators fairly for the use of journalistic material.

Web scraping for AI training without compensation amounts to commercial exploitation. Content creators have the exclusive right to decide how their work is used.

Delhi High Court lacks jurisdiction to hear the case as OpenAI is a U.S.-based company with no physical offices or operational servers in India.

OpenAI is facing similar lawsuits in sixteen different countries, but not a single court has issued an injunction against its operations.

The current industry practice of AI training on publicly available data aligns with global standards and does not constitute copyright infringement.

Publishers seeking to protect their data should implement website restrictions, such as paywalls or anti-scraping measures. Placing the burden on AI developers to seek explicit permissions would stifle technological innovation.

Open AI's claims:

Whether storage by Open AI of ANY data (which is now said to be protected) for training its software would amount to infringement of ANY copyright.	Whether use by Open AI of ANY copyrighted data to generate responses for its users, would amount to infringement of the owner's copyright.
Whether Open AI's use of ANY copyrighted data qualifies as "fair use" in terms of Section 52 of the Copyright Act.	Whether courts in India have jurisdiction to entertain the present lawsuit considering that the servers of the Open AI are located in the US?
