In the wake of the post-COVID-19 era, Mugberia Gangadhar Mahavidyalaya's Bengali Department has embarked on a commendable mission to uplift the lives of people in neighbouring villages. Spearheaded by the Head of the Bengali department and dedicated teaching staff, a team of 35 graduate students and forty MA Bengali final semester students actively participated in this community outreach.

The focus of our efforts extended to Bhupati Nagar, where we delved into the world of Tatiras, artisans proficient in handloom cloth making and various handicrafts. The intricate skills displayed by these artisans left an indelible impression on our team, emphasizing the rich cultural heritage intertwined with their craftsmanship.

Gratifyingly, the Mugberia Gram Panchayat played a pivotal role, offering substantial support to facilitate our mission. Their cooperation was instrumental in creating awareness among our students, fostering a sense of commitment towards the sustainable development of the local industry.

This collaborative endeavour not only brought academic and local communities together but also sowed the seeds of future involvement. The students, captivated by the allure of traditional crafts, now envision themselves as catalysts for the industry's growth. The resonance of this initiative echoes a promising future where education and community engagement intertwine for holistic development.

In the post-COVID-19 era, the Bengali Department of Mugberia Gangadhar Mahavidyalaya took proactive steps to connect with the grassroots communities. Led by the Head of Bengali Department and dedicated teaching staff, a team of 35 graduate students and 40 MA Bengali final semester students engaged in village visits to inquire about people's livelihoods.

A focal point of their efforts was the Bhupati Nagar area, where Tatiras showcased exceptional skills in handloom cloth production and various handicrafts. The collaboration with Mugberia Gram Panchayat proved instrumental, offering significant support for this community-focused initiative. The immersive experience left a lasting impact on the students, fostering a sense of awareness and commitment towards the development of local industries. This initiative not only strengthened ties between academia and rural communities but also sowed the seeds for future involvement in the sustainable growth of these industries.
